JEWISH PERIODICALS
APPEARING IN THE UNITED STATES

INTRODUCTORY REMARKS

Following is a list of Jewish periodicals which were being published in the United States up to the time of printing. Sixteen periodicals given in YEAR BOOK 5679 suspended publication during the past year. The only important one in this group was The American Jewish Chronicle, established in 1916, and published in New York City; its last weekly number appeared on October 18, 1918. Several weeks later another issue was published containing the announcement that beginning with that number the periodical would appear as a monthly. No other number, however, appeared. On March 1, 1919, The Day, established in October, 1914, and Die Warheit, established in 1905, both daily newspapers published in Yiddish in New York City, became amalgamated as The Day-Die Warheit. Another important event in the field of Jewish journalism was the establishment of the Chicago Jewish Daily Forward, on January 1, 1919.

The following list of periodicals is divided into two sections: (A) General Newspapers and Magazines; (B) Organs of Associations and Trade Journals. This classification, it is hoped, will give a clearer view of the field.

Of the ten daily newspapers listed in Group A, four are published in New York City, three in Chicago, and one each in Philadelphia, Cleveland, and Milwaukee. The seventy-six periodicals in this group are published in twenty-nine cities. Twenty-seven appear in New York; ten in Chicago; three each in Cincinnati, Cleveland, Philadelphia, and San Francisco; two each in Boston, Milwaukee, Pittsburgh, and St. Louis; and one in each of the following cities: Baltimore, Bridgeport, Buffalo, Columbus, Dayton, Detroit, Fort Worth, Houston, Los Angeles, Memphis, Minneapolis, New Orleans, Omaha, Portland (Ore.), Providence, Schenectady, Seattle, Toledo, and Wheeling.

Forty of these periodicals were established within the past ten years. Nine have been appearing for from eleven to fourteen years; six for from sixteen to twenty years; seven for from twenty-one to twenty-nine years, and fourteen for thirty years or more. The American Israelite, established in 1854, is the oldest Jewish periodical, being now in its sixty-fifth year. This weekly and The Jewish Times, of San Francisco, and the American Hebrew, of New York City, are over half a century old.
The following tables give the languages in which the periodicals of each group are published and the frequency with which they appear:
