Re:      WEOG and the National Education Association -- Update

David,

According to the associate director of the New Jersey Education Association, the WEOG resolution that passed at last month's convention of the NJEA, entitled Equality in the United Nations, will be presented to a committee of the National Education Association in February. That committee receives resolutions from education associations nationwide and recommends a few of them to the NEA plenary, which meets in July. Because the WEOG resolution is not education-related, "Equality in the United Nations" may not reach the full NEA. But it is not out of the question; in years past, the NEA took stands against apartheid and the UN resolution equating Zionism with racism.

In the meantime, the December issue of a NJEA newsletter, which is sent to public school teachers statewide, contains a one-sentence description of the resolution.
