Make Way For Youth

A Transfilm Production

- What happens when there are invisible fences in a community? When youngsters from one side of town gang up on those from the other side? When religious and racial prejudices prevent friendships and foster hostility?
- Make Way for Youth is a dramatic 22-minute 16 mm. sound film narrated by Melvyn Douglas. It tells the exciting story of one community—and it could be yours! Startled into action by tragedy, the folks of this typical American town—young and old—get together on a youth program . . . and the fences between neighborhoods, races and religions begin to break down.

● YOU'LL see a whole community get a new lease on life when the youngsters work together through an inter-organization Youth Council to make their own town a better place to live in. And you'll acclaim this new approach to community living, which enables young and old alike to learn the skill of cooperation in community service, and to share fully in the practices of democratic citizenship.

Make Way For Youth

● ● ● is REAL—acted by high-school boys and girls and adults from a typical American community. From teen-age boys and girls, to the civic-minded businessman, storekeeper, and doctor in your town, everybody will find this movie appealing, stimulating, thought-provoking.
